Fiscal Year 2017 Donor Listings

A Family Affair
NEBH Trustee Jeffrey Libert’s $3 million gift to establish the Libert Family Spine Institute strengthens the future for New England Baptist Hospital—and promises improved therapeutic options for back pain sufferers.
Dear Friends,

We are pleased to present New England Baptist Hospital’s Spring/Summer 2018 issue of Advances, which includes our fiscal year 2017 donor rolls.

2017 was a busy and inspiring year; we were thrilled to have raised nearly $6 million in philanthropic support—the most raised in any non-campaign fiscal year in the hospital’s history. We are deeply grateful to each of our individual, corporate, and foundation donors for their unwavering commitment to this hospital and to our patients.

We hit the ground running in 2018, inspired and motivated by exciting changes at New England Baptist Hospital. As you may have heard, the Baptist is in the midst of a transformation. NEBH has been called upon, as the only specialty provider, to participate in the formation of a new health care system incorporating Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Lahey Health, Mount Auburn Hospital, and Anna Jaques Hospital. This strategic merger will form the second-largest health care system in the Commonwealth, and will provide care for more than a million patients regionally—dramatically expanding the Baptist’s reach into new geographic areas to bring our unique approach to musculoskeletal care to many more people. Indeed, this opportunity will allow NEBH to fulfill its vision of becoming the premier provider of musculoskeletal care regionally and in the United States.

Over the coming months and years, strategic philanthropic investments will strengthen the hospital as it enters the new system, while keeping NEBH nimble and poised to capitalize on future opportunities, and will preserve critical elements of our culture and practice. By enhancing selected priority programs, such as the Spine Center and the newly formed Libert Family Spine Institute, featured in our cover story, NEBH will accelerate its ability to provide leading-edge musculoskeletal care and ensure its place in greater Boston and in the hearts and minds of patients and their physicians who rely on and believe in the Baptist as their orthopedic hospital.

We are strengthened by our philanthropic success in 2017 and energized by the opportunities that lie ahead, and we hope you are, too. Our grateful patients, philanthropic supporters, and partners will ensure a bright future for NEBH. We thank you for your steadfast support and look forward to sharing more in the months ahead.

I hope you enjoy this issue of our newsletter. Thank you again for all you do for New England Baptist Hospital.

Sincerely,

Morgan Herman
Vice President, Philanthropy
For Jeffrey Libert, a real estate developer, grateful New England Baptist Hospital patient, and NEBH Trustee from Cambridge, back pain was part of everyday life. As a former competitive tennis player (who was team captain and regionally ranked as a player at Amherst College), he battled chronic back pain and repeat injuries that took far longer than expected to heal.

"People said, ‘This is normal; kids get sidelined because of injury.’ But I just kept getting injured—it felt like I was the most injured guy I knew,” he says. Jeffrey turned to NEBH after unsuccessful surgeries elsewhere and has been relying on NEBH for musculoskeletal care ever since. “Finally, in my 50s, my physician, along with doctors at NEBH, said, ‘I think there’s something else going on with you.’”

And there was. Jeffrey was diagnosed with Ehlers-Danlos syndrome, an inherited genetic disorder that affects the connective tissues, particularly the joints.

For Jeffrey, this diagnosis connected the dots to make sense of his lifelong struggles with frequent injuries and chronic back pain that resulted in five back surgeries and one knee surgery. In addition, despite hard work at physical therapy and in the gym, his healing and recovery timelines are far longer than normal, which is typical with Ehlers-Danlos syndrome, and he was also diagnosed with arthritis early in life, which is a common complication of the disorder.

“I’ve had to struggle with musculoskeletal issues for most of my life, and the Baptist has helped me manage and live well despite them,” Jeffrey says. “This hospital has also helped my brother, my mother, my daughter, and my son, and I am deeply grateful.”

Jeffrey says his family members’ and his own lifelong issues with back pain and the expert care he receives at New England Baptist inspired him to make gifts totaling more than $5 million to support research and education programs focused on the spine, including the family’s most recent $3 million gift to establish the Libert Family Spine Institute.

“I think it’s a little bit selfish to invest philanthropically in something that affects you, and I was thinking seriously about giving this gift anonymously because that’s our family’s culture. But I felt it was important to make this gift in my family’s name in the hope that future generations will support ongoing research at the new Institute,” says Jeffrey.

“I wanted to help create something that would keep people from suffering like I have. The Libert Family Spine Institute is going to be something that my family will eventually benefit from, too. It’s really heart-breaking to see people with back pain; it can really sideline you for a large portion of your life and keep you from doing the things you want to do. I am excited to be part of an effort to change this.”
New insights into back pain

Over the last several decades, NEBH has established its reputation as a premier center for patients suffering from back pain. With exceptional spine surgeons, physiatrists, and physical therapists, NEBH has produced revolutionary approaches to caring for the spine, including novel non-surgical treatment based in physical therapy; surgical techniques; and rehabilitation protocols. Each year, New England Baptist Hospital successfully cares for thousands of patients suffering from both acute and chronic back pain.

“Clinicians in our Spine Center have improved outcomes for patients with chronic back pain and disability, but because the spine is so complex, we can and must do better,” says James Rainville, MD, Chief of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation. “The field is still an area of tremendous need and opportunity in medicine.”

Too few patients have their pain resolved after physical therapy or surgery, Dr. Rainville explains, and too many patients have difficulty navigating what can often be a complex system of health care. “Additionally, too few primary care physicians are sufficiently trained in the second most common patient complaint—back pain—to offer a treatment path for their patients,” he says.

The Libert Family Spine Institute will advance clinical, educational, and research initiatives with a goal of enhancing outcomes for patients with spine disorders.

Priorities of the new institute will include a clinical and educational program for primary care providers, training them to effectively serve as the first line of defense when a patient presents with back pain, and clinical research aimed at improving outcomes with a particular focus on predictive analytics, a new approach to leveraging vast amounts of

Gift Spotlight:
Anonymous Gift to Strengthen Fellowships

In honor of the expert care provided by Dr. Mark Steiner, NEBH sports medicine specialist, one of his grateful patients has made an anonymous $200,000 gift to support the Baptist’s renowned Sports Medicine Fellowship Program.

“We made our gift because we believe so fully in the importance of new doctors receiving the high-quality training that the Baptist provides,” says Dr. Steiner’s grateful patient.

NEBH has an important commitment to training the next generation of orthopedic specialists. The Sports Medicine Fellowship trains up to four physicians every year in the specialty practice of Sports Medicine, a growing field within orthopedics focusing on helping patients improve their athletic performance, recover from injury, and prevent future injuries.

Dr. Steiner served as director of the Sports Medicine Fellowship Program until 2017, which is highly selective and renowned for providing fellows with a great deal of hands-on training and exposure to complex cases under the direct supervision of the Baptist’s expert attending physicians. In larger programs, fellows are not often able to work directly with attending physicians, nor do they participate in research or learn about clinical practice management as they do in their training at NEBH.

“We hope our gift will help the Baptist train more sports medicine specialists to provide the level of care Dr. Steiner provided for his patients, with expertise and personalized attention,” said the anonymous donor. “Funding for medical education is at a lower level than ever before, and we think it’s important to support this program to ensure that patients in the future will receive the expert care offered by Dr. Steiner and his colleagues at the Baptist.”

patient data collected and organized in NEBH’s patient data registry. With this new ability, caregivers could potentially use newfound knowledge to recommend the best treatment strategy with better clarity as to the predicted outcome. The goal is to provide precision medicine: the right care for the right patient at the right time and place.

“A lot of progress has been made in revolutionizing other areas of orthopedic care, like joint replacement, but the spine is more complex as a system; back pain has many root causes, the spine is very complicated, and outcomes after back pain interventions, like surgery, are historically less successful,” says Scott Tromanhauser, MD, Chief of Spine Surgery, Chief Medical Quality Officer, and Director of Research Administration. “The focus of the Libert Family Spine Institute will be to conduct the research, educational, and clinical programming that will ultimately transform spine care in the future, and while we’re working toward that goal, improve the outcomes for a whole host of people in need of spine care services today.”

Keep moving forward

Jeffrey credits NEBH with getting him back to living a full life and wants his gift to ensure other back pain sufferers have the same chance.

“I am delighted that we are the best spine and orthopedic hospital in New England and that I not only have the chance to support this new Institute but to be involved with the physicians in setting the strategy,” says Jeffrey. “New England Baptist Hospital is in the midst of a transformation, and although we don’t know what the future will look like, I think it’s important to keep moving forward, keep pushing research, keep improving outcomes. The goal of the gift is to ensure that we remain the leader for patients like me. And I’m so excited about it.”

Active NEBH physician Dr. Sotiris “Chris” Diamandis passed away in January, 2017. Dr. Diamandis, who specialized in surgery and diseases of the liver, pancreas, and biliary tract, was a respected and dedicated member of the NEBH physician staff for 32 years. Dr. Diamandis was born in Greece, grew up in Ethiopia, and earned his degrees in Greece and the U.S. After completing his fellowship in hepato-biliary surgery under NEBH physician Dr. Kenneth Warren, Dr. Diamandis joined Dr. Warren’s practice and became renowned for his excellent surgical skill and outcomes, his endearing personality, and his unique relationships with and commitment to his beloved patients. Colleagues, family, and friends gathered in celebration of his life and career at a memorial service at NEBH on March 9, 2017 and also walked in honor of Dr. Diamandis in the 23rd annual Boston Heart Walk on September 9, 2017. Dr. Diamandis leaves behind five sons, many grandchildren, and his wife, Carolyn Pappas Diamandis.

Retired NEBH orthopedic surgeon, educator, and innovator Dr. Roderick H. Turner passed away on July 1, 2017. Dr. Turner, a renowned leader in the development and improvement of the techniques and tools used in hip and knee replacement, was an Otto Aufranc Fellow who partnered with his mentor, Dr. Otto Aufranc, to develop the revolutionary Aufranc/Turner hip replacement and to build the orthopedic program at NEBH. Dr. Turner spent his three-decade career at NEBH, working to establish the Baptist as a premier musculoskeletal hospital nationally, provide exceptional care for his patients, improve joint replacement surgery, and educate the next generation of joint replacement surgeons. He also established the Roderick H. Turner Fellowship at NEBH to advance fellowship training and research in perpetuity. Many poignant and humorous memories from members of the NEBH community were celebrated at a memorial service on September 27, 2017, attended by NEBH community members, Dr. Turner’s wife Sandra McKay Turner, RN, who was also a long-time NEBH employee, and many family members.

If you would like to learn more about contributing to the Roderick H. Turner Fellowship Fund or making a gift in memory of Dr. Diamandis, please contact the Office of Philanthropy at 617-754-6880.

Please contact Maria Clark at 617-754-6621 or mbclark@nebh.org for more information about charitable gift annuities and other planned giving options that support NEBH.
NEBH Celebrates 125 Extraordinary Years at the 2018 Gala
Thank you to our sponsors!

On April 26, 2018, members of the NEBH community gathered at the Four Seasons Hotel Boston to celebrate the hospital’s 125th anniversary with a special focus on the NEBH fellowship program, which prepares the next generation of orthopedic specialists to care for patients in “the Baptist Way.” The Gala raised nearly $725,000, a portion of which will underwrite our fellowship program.

A special thank you to our Gala sponsors and attendees.
